

ACCESS CONTROL AND SECURITY

Security is too important to trust to a one-time vendor. Protecting your people, your property and your customers is an ongoing process that requires a relationship with a trusted partner. We want to be that partner.

Years of experience with a wide range of security products have made infinIT experts in the security business. Security means more than just motion detectors, card readers and cameras. We start by discussing the risks facing your organization and looking at the physical layout of your facility. Then we design a system especially to meet your needs.

We also have the skilled technicians to install, service and support whatever products your system may require. Access control systems, networkable video surveillance products, motion detection, and sensitive alarm systems can stand alone or be integrated as one system. We can also set up remote access to monitor and make changes to your system from a remote location.

You need a relationship with a knowledgeable partner as well as the best technology to protect your organization. At infinIT, we offer the right relationship and the right products for your security needs.
